Diane W. Frankenstein, author of Reading Together: Everything You Need to Know to Raise a Child Who Loves to Read (Penguin 2009), believes in the following simple equation:

Read a book—
Ask a question—
Start a conversation—
Raise a child who loves to read.

Diane will present her book and insights into “raising children who love to read”.

"The subtitle of this book, 'Everything You Need to Know to Raise a Child Who Loves to Read,' may sound audacious, but it's actually overly modest. Parents and educators who use this book will be raising children who love to learn. Diane Frankenstein teaches us that, through books, children learn language—oral and written—and through language, they learn to think. Importantly, she shows us that the most important outcome may not just be how many books children have read, but how many conversations they've had about them."

—Milton Chen, Ph.D. Executive Director The George Lucas Educational Foundation

“Diane Frankenstein has written an exceptional practical guide to exploring and expanding on children’s literature that will help anyone who reads with children to extend the experience and help them make connections between their thoughts and what they read. Also, by enriching young readers’ current experiences, it can also encourage them to become lifelong readers drawn to the enduring power of the written word to help them understand and articulate thoughts about life as they experience it.”

—Marie Conti American Montessori Society
